

Rootbeer Project Executive Summary

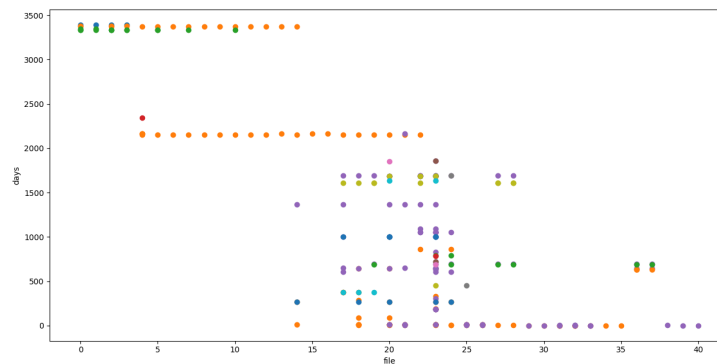

Report By: Jayson Kirchand-Patel

Summary

After nearly 3 years, the rootbeer project has recently had contributions made to it by both old and new authors. The rest of this report will go into further detail about the project and its activity.

Actions Taken

To get an accurate overview of peoples' contributions, I used scripts to gather a list of all the authors that have contributed to the repo, the source files they touched, and the dates that they made their contributions. Source files chosen were any file with an extension corresponding to a programming language that was used. In order to visualize this information, I created the scatterplot shown below.

Analysis

Only 3 authors have made any contributions in the past 3 years. Artsem Kurantsou is a new author and the one that made the first contribution in nearly 3 years, making changes to a handful of source files. Scott Alexander-Bown is the owner of the repo, the person that has made the most contributions, and has made a couple of changes recently.

Conclusion

While there were a handful of contributions made recently, no work was done on the project in nearly 3 years prior, nor in the months since. If you would like to take a closer look at my work, please take a look at my repo: <https://github.com/Kirchpa/Group-4>
